SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1931

Friendly Afternoon Is Chaired By Inter Se Club Members

An enjoyable informality which permitted guests to give their attention to bridge or to dainty needlework, just as fancy dictated, prevailed yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Nowotny, 1005 West Sixth street, where Mrs. Nowotny was hostess to members of the Inter Se club.

Tall spikes of larkspur in all the misty colors which distinguish this lovely flower, lent charm to the home and proved especially artistic when used to center the luncheon table with its Easter bunnies gamboling over the shining damask. Mrs. Nowotny served an inviting lunch menu, which was followed by an afternoon of special enjoyment. Several of her guests preferred to devote their time to needlework, but two tables of bridge were formed, and in the contest, Mrs. Fred Martin scored high and was rewarded with a box of pretty stationery.

All Inter Se members were present to enjoy Mrs. Nowotny's hospitable planning, and were Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. Fred Martin, Mrs. Frank Cannon, Mrs. A. B. Chandler, Mrs. Merle Morris, Mrs. Floyd Spencer, Mrs. Frank McCarter, Mrs. Charles Aubrey, Mrs. James B. Smith, Mrs. William H. Hutton and Mrs. Fred Nelson.

The next meeting of the Inter Se members will be with Mrs. Smith in her home at 2134 South Broadway.

Birthday Celebration Marks Club Meeting

A luncheon of unusual significance was shared yesterday afternoon by members of a little club who met with Mrs. A. J. Swafford in Fullerton, for a special guest of honor was Mrs. Della L. Goff of this city who was celebrating her 57th birthday anniversary. She makes her home with her granddaughter, Mrs. H. O. Garlock, 511 South Flower street.

The appetizing repast was served amidst a setting of sweet peas and roses, many bouquets of which were presented the honoree. Club members spent afternoon hours playing bridge, with Mrs. Park Ash and Mrs. H. O. Garlock scoring high and low. Mrs. Goff spent the day knitting. The little group was completed by Mrs. Jack Abbott of Fullerton.

Santa Ana Girl Is Pictured In Magazine

Santa Ana readers of the magazine "Love," (of the Tower Magazine, Inc.) will find the current number of special interest for the illustrations to the story, "Kiss and Run." For in the pictured portrayal of the heroine of the story, they will be able to see the features of a well-known Santa Ana girl, Miss Velma Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Watkins, 507 West Fifth street.

Miss Watkins, who took her first and middle names of Velma Edell for her professional name, is a graduate of Polytechnic high school, and has been in motion picture work for several years. Her friends here frequently recognized her in character bits in popular pictures before she left Hollywood two years ago for New York City. She returned to the film capital just before the holidays.

While in New York, Miss Watkins did quite a bit of posing for photographic illustrations, her screen making her especially valuable. The story in the current magazine is by Ruby Ayres, a well-known writer of magazine fiction, and Miss Watkins' blonde loveliness is given three different presentations.

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins were to have the pleasure of greeting their daughter today in her girlhood home, for she was to arrive this afternoon for a week-end visit. Mr. Watkins is a former newspaperman, operating a weekly paper in White City, Kas., before coming to California a number of years ago to establish the family home.

ORANGE BRIDE

The wedding of Miss Florence Gillogly of Orange to James Edwin Donegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Donegan of Roseville, was an outstanding event in Orange social circles, and took place Saturday, March 14, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Gillogly on East Maple avenue, Orange. The young people are now touring Oregon and Washington on their honeymoon. They will make their home in Roseville where Mr. Donegan is connected with the Southern Pacific railroad.

College "Bachelors" Entertain Co-eds At Gay Party

Climaxed by an exciting treasure hunt on the sands of Crescent Bay at Laguna Beach, a beach party was given yesterday afternoon by members of the Santa Ana junior college Brotherhood of Bachelors, who complimented their co-ed friends at the merry affair.

The outing started early in the afternoon with swimming, beach sports and baseball on the beach. Toward evening, a giant bonfire was built by pledges to the organization and the 34 collegians present were served with a pot-luck picnic supper. Steaming hot coffee, salads, meat, potato chips, buns, marshmallows, olives, and other refreshments were included in the menu.

George Griffiths, Stanley Johnson and Ervin Watkins, all residents of Laguna Beach, were in charge of the affair and planned the entertainment. A short business meeting was held after the supper and then the group enjoyed music from a portable phonograph, sang songs and roasted marshmallows.

The treasure hunt had been planned before the group arrived and an exciting chase led up and down the beach from one station to another. With the light from the moon and numerous flashlights, the search was a thorough one, with the "treasure" (two boxes of candy) finally found by Miss Velma Bishop and John "Sky" Dunlap.

Bachelors and their guests who enjoyed the party were Paul Bruce, Warren Schutts, Stanley Johnson, Franklin Van Meter, Ervin Watkins, John "Sky" Dunlap, Harry Clayton, Wayne Bartholomew, Mike Santa Cruz, Bill Reinhardt, George Blewitt, Emmett Secord, Bill Crawford, Tommy Cone, Wayne Pinn, the Misses Hazel Hushman, Marjorie Walton, Marion Pence, Helen Hendricks, Vera McDonald, Velma Bishop, Texas, Virginia, Warner, Mary Malend, Betty Maloney, Eleanor Marsh, Margaret Wilson, Evelyn Williams together with Jack Van Meter, Henry Thiery and Mr. and Mrs. Ted L. ### Popular High School Teacher Married In Riverside Surprising a host of Santa Ana friends was the news today of the marriage of Miss Frances L. Lapum, popular Santa Ana high school teacher, and Mr. Frank Concklin, fruit grower of Los Gatos, California. The wedding took place Friday, March 27, at 8 o'clock, in the First M. E. church of Riverside, the Rev. O. W. Reinlus of the Richland Avenue Methodist church of Santa Ana, officiating.

The altar was lovely with baskets of tall gladioluses of salmon pink. Proceeding the ceremony, Mrs. Charles Lofton of Inglewood sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because," after which the bride party entered to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Frank Cruzon of Santa Ana. Mrs. Lofton, who is the daughter of the groom, served as matron of honor. She wore a flowered frock in tones of blue and salmon pink and carried a bouquet of salmon-pink sweet peas.

Miss Lapum, tall and blonde, was lovely in her gown of skipper-blue chiffon, made with a deep yoke of hand-made lace. Her flowers were Cecil Brunner rose-buds and pink sweet peas.

Mrs. Iva M. Webber, who gave the bride in marriage, wore dark blue georgette and a corsage of pink sweet peas. Charles Lofton acted as best man, and William Kellogg of Santa Ana and Los Angeles, as usher.

Following the ceremony a bridal supper was served at the Blue Lantern Tea room to that small group of intimate friends who had motored to Riverside for the wedding. The guests were received at the tea room by the new Mr. and Mrs. Concklin and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Kellogg of Los Angeles. The one long table was attractive with bridal decorations in which tall tapers and clusters of sweet peas were used. The center of interest was the three-tiered wedding cake made by Miss Myrtle Stark of the local high school. The table decorations had been arranged by Miss Stark and Miss Lavinia Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Concklin are spending a week enjoying the desert in its spring beauty, and will return to Santa Ana by way of La Mesa where they will visit the bride's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lapum. Mrs. Concklin traveled in an ensemble of blue figured silk, with dark blue jacket and harmonizing accessories.

The bride has been a teacher at the Santa Ana high school for some years, coming here from Los Gatos. The marriage is the culmination of a long friendship which deepened during the bride's visit last summer to her girlhood home in Los Gatos, near which the groom has a fine ranch home, Sunny Oakes farm.

The group of close friends bidden to the wedding last night included Mrs. Iva M. Webber, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harsh, Mrs. Chauncey Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cruzon, Mrs. D. Stull, Miss Marion Stull, Miss Elizabeth Wyant, Miss Myrtle Stark, Miss Lavinia Scott, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heath, Wilmington; Mrs. Alice Wajn, Manhattan, Kansas; Dr. and Mrs. Clinton D. Hubbard, Huntington Park; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lapum, La Mesa; Harvey Lapum, Los Gatos; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lofton, Inglewood; Mr. and Mrs. William Kellogg, Los Angeles; Miss Elizabeth Kellogg, Inglewood; Rev. O. W. Reinlus, Santa Ana.

Entertaining recently in their attractive ranch home near Garden Grove Mr. and Mrs. Philip Knox were hosts, honoring Mr. and Mrs. George Eisenhauer, of Salina, Kans., who are visiting in Santa Ana. Delicately tinted rosebuds adorned the rooms where the evening was spent in conversation.

MISS ELIZABETH PALMER WILL BE LOVELY BRIDE IN APRIL

Interest of the city's younger social set is centering just now, in the approaching wedding of Miss Elizabeth ("Betty") Palmer, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, 208 Buffalo street, to Donald Park, young Los Angeles business man, and son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Park of Tustin. The wedding date of April 17 was announced to friends of the lovely young bride-elect at a bridge tea of much charm, given early in March by Mrs. Palmer. Since completing her studies at University of California at Los Angeles, Miss Palmer has been teaching in the Fountain Valley school. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority, and many of her sorority sisters were down from Los Angeles for the wedding announcement party.

Calumpit Camp and Auxiliary Share Dinner Event

Another milestone in the history of Calumpit camp and auxiliary, Spanish War Veterans' social affairs was passed Tuesday evening in Knights of Columbus hall where an excellent program was presented to approximately 100 members following a pot luck dinner at 6:30 o'clock. The tables were beautifully decorated with genesta sprays and the green foliage and long clusters of yellow blossoms were further augmented by vases of marigolds and sweet peas.

The program that succeeded the dinner consisted of the following numbers: "The Star Spangled Banner" by the audience with U. G. Ordway at the piano; readings, "Interrupted Romance" and "Like Father," by Miss Chelena McBurney, a pupil of Etta Hale; banjo solos by U. G. Ordway; "Lollypop March" and "Pie a Little String Around Your Finger," a combination of marching, singing and dancing, by three young girls in costume, Charlene Kincaid in blue, Beverly Hendrickson in white and Gloria Bradford in yellow. In addition, the children wore large black play hats and carried canes.

The program closed with a play-let by young people from one of the Santa Ana churches, playing "In The Making" directed by Mrs. Gay Miller assisted by Captain Alfred P. Moulton as property man. The scene was a juvenile court judge's chamber and the theme was the making of better Americans. The cast was: "Judge Bardell," Roland Sandstrom; "Miss Kins" (the office girl), Louise Snow; "Mrs. Truman" (mother of Leah), Frances Moulton; "Leah Selesky" (an American-born Russian girl), Melba Winter, Anna Patmor, Elva Hunt and her daughter Twila, and comrades William Miller, Charles W. Winter, Charles W. Kincaid, J. C. Parry and Ed E. Patmor.

Wedding In Atwood Will Interest Friends In Santa Ana

A pretty home wedding ceremony in Atwood, which will interest many family friends in this city, was that of Miss Ellen Linebarger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Linebarger, and Reginald ("Duke") Kuhn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kuhn of Placentia, which took place last night in the Linebarger home.

The ceremony was at 6 o'clock with the Rev. Father Gumbel of Placentia, conducting the rites. The bride party formed before a bower of white roses, bridal wreath and ferns banded before the fireplace in the livingroom. Miss Linebarger wore an ensemble of pink wool georgette with hat and accessories of beige, and carried pink rosebuds and blue forget-me-nots.

The color of the bride's outfit was echoed in the deeper rose of the silk ensemble worn by her attendant, Miss Josephine Kuhn, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Kuhn also wore a beige hat and accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of orchid and sweet peas. Gilbert Kuhn served his brother as best man.

After the bride's cake had been cut and served, Mrs. Kuhn changed to her traveling outfit of blue and tan, and the young couple left for Santa Barbara where they will visit for a while and go farther north, returning in two weeks to make their home in Placentia.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn attended the Placentia Union grammar school, where Mr. Kuhn is employed, and later went to the Fullerton Union high school.

Educators Lay Aside Teaching Cares For Social Pleasures

Schoolroom responsibilities and cares were temporarily forgotten last Friday evening when members of the teaching staff of Fremont school accepted the hospitality of Mrs. George J. Boyd and Mrs. Emory E. Knipe at a dinner and bridge party of unusual charm.

The two hostesses staged their hospitality in the pleasant Boyd home on Oak street, where the recent St. Patrick holiday was recalled by the clever appointments of the tables, and the floral decorations in which yellow sweet peas were mingled with blossoms whose petals were a delicate green. Emphasizing the color harmony were the fragrant masses of genista, whose yellow blossoms and feathery spray of leaves repeated the colors.

Following their leisurely enjoyment of the dinner menu, the guests sought places around the small table for bridge. Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Knipe had evolved the original method of tallying the scores in keeping with the general gaiety of the evening. Miss Boyd Joplin was the fortunate holder of high score and was suitably rewarded.

Sharing the hospitality with the two hostesses were Evelyn Herling, Boyd Joplin, Evelyn Cray, Helen Abbey, Sue Baxter, Helen Johnston, Emma Dietrich, Thelma Patton, Nellie M. Smith, Alice Taulbee, Dorothy Smith, Edith Ritter, Edna Day and Mirrie Wilson.

Dr. Margaret D. Baker, chairman of the physical education group, presided over the meeting, introducing as speaker, Miss Mary Frances Day, traveling secretary for the city department of the National Y.W.C.A. In her interesting talk, Miss Day brought to the attention of the women, the many-sidedness of the organization, pointing out the valuable contacts it establishes with the youth of today. This value was appreciated by President Hoover, she explained, when he included the Y. W. in his presidential commission for the investigation of the unemployment situation, and asked it to be responsible for aid to unemployed business girls.

A regional conference was announced for April 7 to 10, in Asilomar where such subjects as unemployment, international relations and the status of family life, will be brought up for discussion. ### Women's Choice Dance Will Be Brilliant College Affair

Santa Ana junior college Donas will escort the Dons to the Women's Athletic association women's choice dance tonight at the Ebell clubhouse, instead of the men taking the girls as has always been the custom at previous college dances. The affair is to be strictly informal and Don Dresser's Troubadours composed of eight pieces, has been secured to furnish the music, through the efforts of Miss Lorna Allen, tennis manager.

Decorations suggestive of spring in the flowers and ferns will be used. Miss Helen Hendricks, women's athletic commissioner, is in charge of the decorations. Extremely striking dance programs of black and gray, designed by Miss Maybelle Ball, will await the dancers upon their arrival. Girls in trim uniforms will be ready to assist the couples at the door and check room and at the punch bowl. Miss Neva McDonald is supervising these details.

Holmes, in her home, 902 South Main street. Miss Holmes' approaching marriage to Edgar E. Elsner was announced recently at a delightful breakfast given by her mother, Mrs. A. T. Holmes.

Little suspecting that a party was planned in her honor, Miss Holmes went to her aunt's home on an errand and found a group of friends assembled there. Bunko was soon in session as the game of the day, and with the checking of tallies Mrs. James Sewell and Mrs. Thomas were awarded prizes for scoring high and low.

Bouquets of sweet peas and pink roses were arranged about the rooms to form an attractive setting for the social hour, when refreshments were served at the small tables spread with pink linens. Ice cream and cakes, decorated with brides and bridegrooms, were served with coffee. It was then that the hostess presented her niece with the prettily wrapped packages which proved to contain a variety of linens.

Those present, other than the hostess, Mrs. Holmes, and the honoree, Miss Holmes, were Mrs. T. R. Wood, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. James Sewell, Mrs. Hugo Lamb, Mrs. J. H. Chambliss, Mrs. La Verne Gulley, Mrs. James F. B. Richards, Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Stockton and Mrs. A. T. Holmes.

Mr. and Mrs. William O. Harlis are pleasantly settled in a cozy apartment at 525 South Flower street, having taken possession shortly after their quiet wedding of Monday, March 16.

Mr. Harlis also came to Santa Ana from Red Wing, where he graduated from the high school of that city. His bride completed her high school course with the graduating class of 1930.

The ceremony which united them in marriage took place in the parsonage home at 1018 Spurgeon street of the Rev. Harry Evan Owens, pastor of the First Baptist church. Miss Swanson was gown in a smart spring ensemble in rose tones, with which she wore accessories of pale tan.

Mrs. Dawson attended her sister as honor matron, while Mr. Dawson served Mr. Harlis as best man.

While the happy young people were still guests in the Dawson home, a score or more employees of the Westcoast Marble works, with which Mr. Harlis is connected, surprised them at an enjoyable evening party. Dancing to radio music was enjoyed, and refreshments of cake and ice cream, thoughtfully provided by the merry makers, were served. To complete the memorable evening, Mr. and Mrs. Harlis were presented with a graceful console set in ebon glass, and an electric iron.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Sense About Dentifrices
Every woman will agree with me that lovely white teeth are an outstanding note of beauty in even the plainest face; a gift to be guarded like the Crown Jewels.

Over radio we listen to burles about the marvelous properties of this and that dentifrice and mouth wash, and their ability to kill germs which cause pyorrhea and the lesser horde of mouth infections.

If you want to see these various and other claims taken apart and watch their wheels go 'round, listen in on the radio talks sponsored by the Western Farm and Home Hour, under the leadership of W. D. Vincent, chief of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Food and Drug Administration, San Francisco, California, and ask that Mr. Vincent's radio talk on "Dentifrices" be sent to you. He leaves nothing to the imagination, and his sound advice will save you money and grief if you will profit by it, before trouble starts.

By the way, do you know that powdered charcoal is an excellent whitener of teeth? You can buy it at your druggist's.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Peanut Pralines
1 pound brown sugar
1 pound unshelled pecans
1 tablespoon butter
4 tablespoons water

These little sugar "pancakes" are just about the best thing going in home-made candies, and so easy to make that you can sally forth and have them cooling their heels in less than an hour.

The first thing to do is to shell the pecans. Now this can be hard or easy, just as you wish it. The easy way is to drop the nuts into boiling water for a couple of minutes, drain, and crack with standers, directly on the end with the hammer. The nuts usually crack in half, leaving the nuts perfectly halved.

Reserve a few of the perfect halves for decorating the pralines, the others are to be cut fine and not so fine and added to the sugar after the water and butter have melted and it has begun to boil. Stir constantly until the candy begins to turn back to sugar (it gets a cloudy appearance, will have a cloudy appearance, or you can test the syrup in water. Crackle test when hard enough.

Have some pans buttered, drop a big spoonful of the hot candy mixture on the pan, press three pecan halves into each cake before the candy cools.

The recipe will make quite a number of pralines, so you must count them and divide their number into the candy food value of each candy cake. They are good for a child's sweet tooth, but absolutely fatal for the overweight. She must veil her face and cry "Avaunt, Temptation!"

Carrying on the analysis, the overweight should likewise look only with longing eyes on the recipes to be found in the leaflet for the week FOOD FOR THE GODS. But if she weakens we will be ever so glad to welcome her stamped, self-addressed envelope and request for a copy of this leaflet. It is offered free for the last time with this issue.

MUSIC LITERATURE ART

LEO ORNSTEIN

By RUTH ANDREWS

Part II
Although Leo Ornstein celebrated his 35th birthday only last December, he has already achieved noteworthy success in varied fields of musical endeavor. Proof of his versatility is seen in the triumphs he has won as a pianist on the concert stages of many countries as well as in the rapid strides he has made toward fame in the role of a contemporary composer of genius during the past decade. His work, definitely revolutionary in character, has given him a place among the front ranks of the ultra-modernists.

Some of Ornstein's best, most distinctive works have been composed in the smaller forms, especially in the field of piano music. He is adept in picturing moods in colorful musical language. His piano works include a sonata, "Dwarf Suite," "Impressions of the Thames," "Two Impressions of Notre Dame," "Steady Pieces" and numerous preludes. Other compositions include the symphonic poems "The Fog" and "The Life of Man," founded on the writings of Andreiev, a concerto for piano, string quartet, a piano quintet, sonatas for violin and piano and cello and piano.

Among vocal works an arrangement of the 30th Psalm for chorus is noteworthy, also many songs and musical settings for the extraordinary poems of the 18th century English mystic, William Blake. Sometimes Ornstein is compared to the great Russian modernist, Igor Stravinsky, but there is a very human and youthful vigor to be found in the work of the former that bespeaks a more emotional temperament, bold, very vital and intensely fond of garish color which he applies with prodigious unrestraint.

Paul Rosenfeld, famous writer and music critic, writes of Ornstein in his customary picturesque fashion: "This music typifies modern city life. It might have been laid in New York's midst. Here is the violent motion, the metallic quality expressive of an age of steel. . . the modern generation. Here is tenacity, the clashing of tonal contrasts, the warring of counter-rhythms and turbulent counterpoint."

And in another equally expressive comment: "Ornstein's work is imbued with racial feeling of the Russian Jew. Again and again he speaks in accents resembling the savage, wolfish language of the Old Testament."

So despite the early transplanting to the melting pot of America and the youthful years spent amid continental music circles, Ornstein did not easily shake off this racial heritage from which source, no doubt, had sprung his unique genius.

Contrasting Ornstein's earlier compositions with those of more recent years, critics regard with special favor his more youthful writings produced during his early twenties, and accuse him now in his more settled maturity of a slackening of power, a softening, a lessening of the intensity and violence that dominated his youthful works.

This fatal waning of creative force is explained as a "period of transition," which may be succeeded by even more noteworthy triumphs, or as a result of Ornstein's having expended too much energy in the concert field during recent years.

Again because of the revolutionary nature of his art, and the inevitable misunderstanding that was its reward on many occasions, with artists and orchestra conductors hesitating to give his works a hearing, Ornstein may have sought to popularize his more recent writings as many other composers have done, realizing how vital is public favor to contemporary "success."

One of Ornstein's most recent accomplishments has been his striking musical accompaniment composed for the dramatic production of Aristophanes "Lysistrata," the production of which in Philadelphia last spring and later in New York started both cities with its theme of unconventionality (if such is possible!).

Ornstein is frank in his own self-appraisal. He terms himself "one of the commanding contemporary figures of musical evolution." "With Schonberg and Stravinsky I have taken my position at the extreme outposts of ultra-modern musical advancement," he affirms.

However, Ornstein's supreme self-confidence finds sincere support from no less an authority than the Jewish-American genius, Ernest Bloch, considered one of the foremost among contemporary composers, who terms Ornstein "the single composer in America today displaying positive signs of genius."

training of its new director, Mr. Hall, former vocal authority of Chicago.

Open Music Week Preparations
Friday noon, March 27, marked the opening of local preparations for the annual celebration of National Music Week, to be held here in Santa Ana during the first week in May.

Gathering at Kerner's, the Santa Ana Music Week committee outlined plans for this year's festivities, which will be carried out in the same elaborate fashion that has prevailed in previous seasons, with novel musical programs to be offered free to the public throughout the entire week of May 3 to 9 inclusive.

According to Harry Hanson, general chairman of the local committee, the week will open with an open-air musical program in Birch Park on Sunday afternoon, May 3, under the auspices of the city churches, at which time a large chorus, directed by Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, director of the First Methodist Church Choir, will participate also the Santa Ana Municipal band, directed by D. C. Clafonli.

Special programs are also in preparation by the music departments of the city schools, while in former years various local musical organizations, including various choirs, will co-operate to make the successful staging of this year's event equal in novelty and interest to that of past seasons, when the local celebration of this national event has brought wide publicity to this section.

Members of this year's local Music Week committee include Harry Hanson, chairman, D. C. Clafonli, J. A. Cranston, D. K. Hammond, Frances Hunt Beeson, Miss Myrtle Martin, Rev. Harry Owens, R. C. Smedley, Bruce Switzer, Sol Gonzalez, Gladys Shaffer, Mary Burke King, Norman Sprawl, Rock Bradshaw, Eleanor Young Elliott, Ruth Andrews, Cecile Willets, and Jeanette McFadden.

LOS ANGELES

The first session, at 10 a. m., March 30, will be held in the ballroom of the hotel, the principal speakers being Mayor John C. Porter, Supervisor F. A. Bouelle, Louis W. Curtis, supervisor of Los Angeles public school music; Herman Trutner, and Russell V. Morgan.

Book Notes . . .

"The Weigher of Souls," a new novel by Andre Maurois is published by Appleton this week. It is said to be beautifully written poetry which proceeds, in a half-fantastic way to investigate one of the greatest mysteries of human experience. It deals with the attempt of an English physician, first to capture and then isolate the essence—or the soul—which leaves the body after death. The narrator of the story is a French friend whom the doctor has taken into his confidence, and who is the man ultimately called upon to complete his experiment. Furthermore, the novel narrates the romance of the English doctor with a charming actress, tells of his marriage and of his sudden death, and culminates with the ultimate frustration of his scientific coup de grace. The setting of the story, and the rather extraordinary character of the doctor's research lends a haunting atmosphere of the strange and eerie to M. Maurois' novel.

Henrietta Leslie and Joan Temple have dramatized the book, "Mrs. Fischer's War." She says: "We're not absolutely sure of the date of production."

John Tunis recently sailed for a couple of months on the Riviera.

"Cosmic Religion and Other Opinions and Aphorisms" by Prof. Albert Einstein, published recently by Covell, Friede, has been chosen as one of the selections of the Jewish Book of the Month Club for March.

An excerpt from "The Diary of Sylvia McNeely" (age 9), being a small girl's opinion of her brother, reads: "Saturday, September 7. I went to a movie this afternoon, to the Show Boat at the Grand. I went with Jean Gillam, Betty Jane Armstrong and Tom. It was very good. Tom went down ahead of us because he didn't want to be seen walking with girls in public. That much sounds genuine."

John Bassett Moore commends Emile Burns' "Russia's Productive System," a detailed account of the Five Year Plan, as a "remarkably full and compact account of the origin and development of the present condition in Russia."

Henry Williamson, who spent months in America, in New York City, boasts that he only lectured three times while here—twice at Harvard and once at Dartmouth. He sailed for England, with Mrs. Williamson, on the Leviathan, March 11. He reported that New York's noise was a great relief from the English countryside—that he was able to rewrite one novel and build the foundation for another during his stay.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Little America by Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

"Little America" is one of the books not to be missed. Those people who have not time to read many books and who are baffled by the number of books turned out and must be "choosy" should put "Little America" on their list. Even though their list is very short it is difficult to think of any type of person who would not enjoy "Little America."

The personality of the man, Admiral Richard Byrd, his executive ability, his knowledge of the history of arctic and antarctic exploration, his precautions to safeguard his men, his concerns, carries the appeal that all biography has. Then there is the absorbing interest in which such an adventure abounds—the battle with the cold, the wind, the waves, the ice-bergs. The passages in which Admiral Byrd refers to the wonderful Eskimo dogs have a fascination all their own. Then there is the explanation of the scientific purposes of the enterprise—pared down enough not to be boring to the unscientific, yet comprehensive enough to explain much that the romance of the adventure leaves unexplained.

The pictures of the South pole flight dramatized the Byrd expedition as no other has before been. But it made us all want to know more about it—and most of all know more about the man whose capabilities were such that they for the most part concealed the difficulties of the undertaking and yet brought about its success.

When one is least aware of the man behind an organization one can be most sure that he is capable. The Byrd South Pole expedition was so free from disaster that the public is little aware of the hardships which were encountered. The efficiency of the founding of Little America was impressive, the so-called "luxury" of the expedition was more impressive. And it looked so easy to be flying along in the plane, flying right over the South Pole. The story of how it was actually accomplished is not an anti-climax. It carries with the thrill a feeling of awe.

Referring to the preparations, Admiral Byrd says: "It has been a real fight, this battle of New York. Minor crises fell hard upon major crises. There is still an immense debt—I owe more money than I used to think existed. But debt or no debt, I must have a few days at home, so I am on my way home."

"Knowing how often during the long Antarctic winter night my men will come back to this place, I am cramming it with impressions, snatching them like a glutton."

Admiral Byrd's boy Dickie surprised him while he was at home with a gift of $435. He had worked hard all summer, doing odd jobs, and saved his money, bit by bit. In addition to giving him the money he said: "I'll make some more, daddy, and send it."

Rare Earth, by Frank Owen, published by the Lantern Press.

"Rare Earth" is another of those "soil" novels. But there is beauty in the characters which is not often found in most such. There are so many grubby and grasping and mean characters put into these novels of rural people. For the most part they are people whose struggles has so far absorbed them that they can no longer think about love, about beauty, about comforts and consolations of mind and body. Into "Rare Earth" Frank Owen has incorporated some interesting and noble characters. There is Hung Long Tom, dreamer and teller of fairy tales, and there is Scobbee Trent, whom Hung Long Tom has cared for since babyhood. Scobbee's mother had died when he was born, but somehow the great house which Ardell, his mother, had built was mother to him. It was a peculiar, and yet a beautiful thing. And there was Roma, Scobbee's stepmother. She doesn't figure much in the story but she is fine and loving and sympathetic and she doesn't hold resentment when she cannot be more than a friend to Scobbee. Then there is Jethro Trent, the lover of the soil, Jethro was taciturn, never showed love or sentiment, yet there was something grand about him.

Also there are Linda and Benda Joel and their son Enoch. In them is presented an epic struggle of the colored race. Benda had his degree as civil engineer but he could get no farther, because of his color, and he turned to a farm. "The soil doesn't care what color a man is born. The important thing is what color he lives. Just as good potatoes or wheat will grow for me as for any other man," he said. Their son Enoch is born and when Jethro goes to sleep and does not awake Enoch takes over his father's work. And he does well. He seemed to be a born farmer. He plans great things for his mother, Linda. A pretty home which everyone will look at, and kid gloves. But the war came and Enoch never returned from France. "He was never much of a soldier," says the author. "He failed miserably in hatred but then it is doubtful if many soldiers on either side ever succeeded to any measurable degree in hating."

The fields of Linda were neglected. It looked as though she might lose her farm. But the neglected fields touched Jethro Trent, lover of waving fields of wheat, and he cultivated them. And he put a cow in her stable, so he could have a glass of fresh milk now and then as he worked, so he said. That cow so delighted Linda that she sometimes got up in the night to go out and look at her, and see if she were still there.

Hung Long Tom and Scobbee travel to China and in that way there is woven into the story of the people of a farming community of Illinois, the philosophy and gentleness of Chinese sages and a beautiful Chinese garden.

"For The Defence," "The Life of Sir Edward Marshall Hall," by Edward Marjoribanks, M. P. Published by the Macmillan company of New York, with introduction by the Rt. Honourable the Earl of Birkenhead.

These memoirs, this picturization of one of the greatest of English criminal lawyers is a fascinating biography, as well as a record of many of the most famous criminal cases in the past 50 years of English history.

Here is a lawyer whose great success was due to knowledge of human nature, and his ability to throw around his clients the glamour of his own fine and vigorous personality. His physique and earnestness compelled attention while he dramatized the position of his client for the benefit of the jury. Marshall Hall frankly acknowledged his own deficiencies in the fine points of law, and very frankly placed all his energies on the facts in the case and interpreting them to advantage of his client.

Court room "drama" rather than knowledge and reliance upon the fine points of law made him the outstanding success at the bar. It should be remembered, however, that his practice in its sensational aspects was largely in criminal cases.

Without any apparent motive to do so, the author clearly illustrates that the appeal to the emotions, passions and sympathy of men is far more likely to secure a favorable verdict for a client in a criminal matter than an appeal and defence upon the fine points of law.

To those people who are interested in law as a career this book is splendidly revealing as to the qualities of character necessary for a brilliant or even successful court-room legal practice.

As a book to be read for entertainment, or for a thrill it is equal to most "thrillers." Here we have a lawyer obstinately disagreeing with judges on the bench; frequently warned to show proper respect; often times making but poor attempts to hide the contempt he felt for some of those who presided. The sarcasm of the verbal passages at the bar of justice are often superb. Marshall Hall often pays humiliating penalties, but gives as good as he receives.

The history of criminal cases of which a score are given in great detail are a revelation of patient effort and attention to the smallest detail.

At the age of 36 he defended a destitute harlot charged with murder. This woman had been a governess, had been married, was the mother of three children and had taken to prostitution as a means of making a living. An elderly man came to see her, in a fight, scuffle, holdup, or assault, the man who was a "respectable" was killed. The woman hid the body in a trunk and took new lodgings elsewhere in the city, where the police discovered the body in her quarters. Marshall Hall convinced the jury that the killing had been done in self defense. Newspapers "played" this case and Marshall Hall was known throughout England.

Later he was to have many and perhaps more difficult cases to defend, but achieve the unexpected most often, hailed at such times as a great man. Amongst his cases were those of several murderers who committed their crimes in order to get possession of fortunes known to be possessed by the victims. Curiously enough, where greed was the motive, the victim was buried with the greatest penury possible, sometimes even as an indigent, though dying possessed of means which became the murderers' spoils.

There is humour also in some of the cases. Marshall Hall at one time defended an old man who has taught him to shoot and hunt. He was charged with poaching. The guards had secured his gun but the old man had escaped from them. The jury voted for acquittal. The judge had dismissed the case, when the old man arose and addressing Marshall Hall, his attorney, asked aloud, "What about my gun?" But this old fellow had been tried and acquitted, he could not again be tried on the same charge.

We recommend this book for those who wish to learn about the qualifications of a great legal defender.

Galileo, Searcher of the Heavens, by Emilio Namer (McBride publishers), tells the life story of one of the tiny but valiant minority who spend their time, health, energy, in endeavoring to make people see the truth. Galileo was a voice crying in the wilderness of ignorance, a genius persecuted and threatened with dire punishment in this world and the next simply because he used his eyes and brains intelligently and dared to see and think ahead of the pundits of his day. He was perhaps the greatest modern of the 16th century. Bernard Shaw includes him among the Makers of Universes. The telescope is only one of the inventions he made practical. His life is a long series of dramatic vicissitudes, ably pictured in this biography by a French astronomer.

Art Notes . . .

The recent exhibition of contemporary art which many people of the county enjoyed while it was being shown in the New Santa Ana building, Santa Ana, will be open to the public at the Los Angeles Public Library on April third and will continue throughout the month.

The work of two more artists is to be seen in the group appearing at Los Angeles, they are Dorothy Dowdatt, of Whittier and Everett Gee Jackson, of San Diego. This group was organized by Robert Gilbert assisted by John Hinchman, Arthur Ames, Edith Truesdell and Jean Goodwin as an initial effort to show a comprehensive annual exhibition of Modern Art created in Southern California.

An old friend and admirer of the late Conway Griffith visited Laguna recently and secured a fine watercolor of Mr. Griffith's which he is taking east with him to hang in a new home which he is building. As so often happens when a painter of note has passed on his works are in great demand and increase in value constantly. Conway Griffith had many warm friends in this section who admired his personality quite as much as his paintings. He was one of the pioneer artists of the Laguna Beach Colony.

Mrs. Catherine W. Watkins, well known artist from New York visited the art galleries in Laguna last week. She was the guest of Nell Coover, the noted etcher.

An all-art program was broadcast over radio station KREG last Monday morning, March 23 from the Tustin High School auditorium. These programs are helping to promote art-mindedness in Orange county.

U. S. C. BUYS PAINTING BY NOTED ARTIST

The University of Southern California has acquired for its newly conceived permanent collection "December, San Jacinto" by George K. Brandriff, modern California artist. This purchase inaugurates President Rufus Von Kleinschmidt's plan to foster art appreciation in the West by incorporating an art gallery in the university to house a complete collection of representative work by leading California and Southwestern painters, sculptors and etchers.

Dr. Von Kleinschmidt, himself a patron of the arts and the possessor of one of the finest private collections of Chinese porcelains on the Pacific Coast, holds that the future of art in America depends upon an appreciative and intelligent audience, and that the modern educational institution should be a prime factor in cultivating this audience. To this end the regents of the university are now working, and the proposed art gallery is to be part of their extensive building programme.

Brandriff is one of California's younger artists and his rise to prominence has been rapid. His "December, San Jacinto" was included in a recent exhibition of "Painters of the West." He is a regular exhibitor at the art galleries in Laguna Beach. He owns a studio home in Laguna and has painted many pictures in that locality. It is said that it was from the Laguna artists and environment that he first received his inspiration to paint.

NEWS FROM THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

CHRYSLER SIX MODELED AFTER NEWER EIGHTS

Just as the Chrysler Straight Eights were a logical development of the engineering genius, experimentation and production skill of Chrysler Motors, so it is fitting that the new Chrysler Six should be a logical development of the distinctive points in style, quality and performance of the Chrysler eights.

The Chrysler Six, which was shown for the first time at this year's Auto shows, is new from the ground up and from front to rear bumper. Utilizing the outstanding features which make the Chrysler Eights so remarkable, the new Chrysler Six is in every way a worthy companion car to the Eights.

New and distinctive features never included before in a Chrysler Six—and that means in any low priced six cylinder car—are the double-drop frame developed by Chrysler engineers and first used on the Eights. Wheelbase is 116 inches. An overall length of 175 3/8 inches with an overall height of only 68 inches, yet providing generous headroom and normal road clearance, this car at once has extreme grace and beauty in size, length and lowness.

NEW SHOWING OF CARS TO BE MUCH LARGER

Prospects for a strong spring showing in the automobile industry were given significant support by February production figures and wired reports from all sections of the country on retail sales, according to a statement received from the Automobile Chamber of Commerce headquarters in New York.

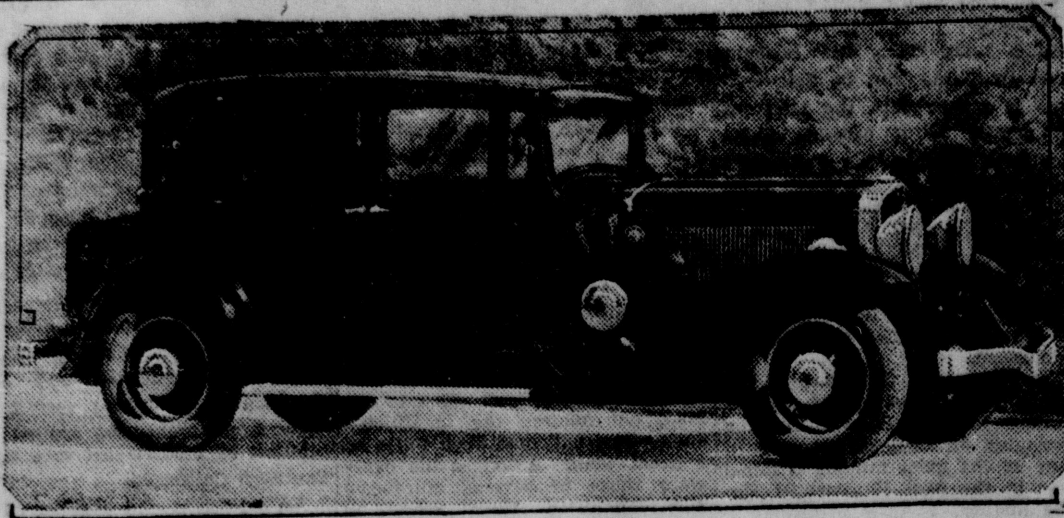

The up-curve in motor car output was continued unbroken during February with a total estimated production of 230,364 units—an increase of 29 per cent over the output for the preceding month.

February production was the highest of the last six months and continued the up-curve which was inaugurated in December.

Retail sales reports from leading motor markets throughout the United States, except where winter conditions continue, were almost unanimous in reflecting prospects for a continued increase in sales during the next two months, with used car markets more active than usual.

FREE WHEELING BEAUTY

The new Studebaker President Eight Brougham for five with Free Wheeling is designed to catch the eye of even the most discriminating of women. Its graceful lines, softly molded contours, and smart colors aptly suggest the new driving thrill and thrills of Free Wheeling. Six wire wheels, two carried in front fender wells, are standard, as well as a commodious trunk containing fitted suitcases and a hat box. Horsepower is 122. Wheelbase 136 inches. Price is $2295, at the factory, bumpers and spare tires extra.

SPARK PLUGS CAUSE OF MUCH MOTOR GRIEF

Spark plugs that are worn out, improperly adjusted or dirty cause missing of the engine, hard starting, excessive use of the storage battery and higher gasoline consumption.

All that is needed to correct such faults is to clean or re-gap the plugs, or if the car has gone 10,000 miles or more with the same plugs, to replace them with new ones.

Tests made by automotive engineers show that a motor in which spark plugs have been used for a little over 10,000 miles developed 31.2 horsepower when run at an engine speed equivalent to 20 miles per hour. The same motor run at the same speed with a new set of spark plugs gave a horsepower reading of 38.0, an increase of 6.8 horsepower.

"The importance of inspecting the spark plugs and breaker contact points at least twice a year cannot be over emphasized as high compression engines of today impose a greater demand upon them than ever before," says Jack Campbell, local manager of the Western Auto Supply company.

"As a special inducement to auto owners to install new spark plugs in their cars at this time, the Western Auto Supply company is offering both the nationally known Champion and A. C. spark plugs at prices which have been greatly reduced for the final week of our 'Fifteenth Anniversary Sale,' which is now in progress," says Campbell.

$2,000,000 For Highway Work In S. C.

Final apportionment of federal aid funds to the California highway system allocated approximately $2,000,000 in state highway projects in Southern California.

Among southland projects included are $260,000 for grading and surfacing on the Arrowhead Trail, east of Baker in San Bernardino county, points out the Automobile Club of Southern California. Finances have been provided already for building to about 20 miles east of Baker, with about 30 miles yet to be built between that point and the state line. Impending construction of Boulder Dam will greatly increase travel over this route.

DETOUR NECESSARY FULLERTON TO L. A.

Due to resurfacing operations on Commonwealth avenue between Norwalk and Fullerton a detour over paved streets is necessary, states the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

HUNDREDS SEE NEW AUBURNS AT S. A. AGENCY

Since Paul Clark has taken over the Auburn agency here and at Anaheim, unusual interest has been manifested in seeing the newest models, now on display both here and in Anaheim, Clark announced today.

"Hundreds of persons have inspected our new cars during the past several days," he stated.

In talking about the new models, Clark sets forth some of the improvements the Auburn has over the conventional type of automobile, which are as follows:

Its very low and somewhat exotic lines give it instant prominence. At the same time it has a number of quite unusual features of construction, including a bridge-type frame construction that is in all probability the most rugged foundation that has ever been put beneath a rear-drive car. On the other hand, the feature that will bring this new car the greatest amount of attention is its adoption of free wheeling.

Free wheeling, as Auburn sees it, should apply, not merely to the intermediate and high speed ratios, but to all three forward speeds. Gear shifting is handled in a perfectly conventional manner with this application, with the added advantage, common to all free wheeling systems, that the shifts between intermediate and high, and in this case, also from first to second, may be effected without disengaging the clutch. The free wheeling unit is thrown into or out of engagement by means of a small lever placed directly in front of the driver's seat.

The new Auburn employs the L. G. S. free-wheeling unit, which is separately mounted at the rear end of the transmission. Silent-mesh gears are used in the transmission, so that the operation of the car is as quiet as can be expected of any car.

are manufactured; the pressed steel building with its gigantic presses; and the coke ovens and other units in which by-products are recovered to the extent of millions of dollars annually.

Throughout the picture one sees literally miles and miles of conveyors which take much of the manual labor off the backs of men. There are conveyors carrying newly arrived materials into the plant, others taking parts from one building to another, and, of course, the final assembly line, that famous conveyor on which the parts are put together to form the completed car.

Travel on Air Line Increases

J. W. Gilpin and one of the tri-motored, ten-place cabin planes used by Gilpin Airlines on the run from Los Angeles to San Diego and Agua Caliente. Gilpin reports a steadily increasing patronage.

Constantly increasing air travel from Los Angeles to San Diego and Agua Caliente is reported by J. W. Gilpin, operator of the Gilpin Airlines.

During the past three months, the line has carried 1,075 passengers. Not a single accident has occurred to mar the safety record of the company.

The air passenger run between Los Angeles and San Diego is said to have been the first established in America. The Gilpin Company became the exclusive operator of this service more than three months ago. Mr. Gilpin believes in personal service and personal attention to passengers' comfort as the most important elements in building up the popularity of air travel. He is a pilot with many thousands of hours of flying time to his record, and he takes his regular shift with two other pilots in operating ten-place, tri-motored planes. In addition to this work, he finds time every night to direct the mechanical maintenance operations to insure positive safety.

Gilpin claims that only personal supervision will lower the risk of aerial transportation. "With constant vigilance and making our passengers feel at home, we are making friends and a record for safe travel," he declares.

On recent Gilpin manifests appear the names of many national celebrities, including Ex-Governor Rodriguez of Lower California; T. B. Wamamaker; Earl Burtnett, of orchestra fame; Earle Ovington, first airmail pilot in America; Jack Dempsey; Mack Sennett and many others.

CALL ATTENTION TO FOREST FIRE DANGER

A few simple rules observed by motorists and campers would go a long way toward reducing the toll of forest fires in California, points out the Stop Forest Fires Committee. These precautions may be summed up as follows:

"Be sure camp fires are absolutely out before leaving them. Do not throw lighted cigarette or cigar stubs from vehicles; this is prohibited by state law. Be sure your match is extinguished; break it in two as an extra precaution. Remember a spark may kindle a flame and consume a forest."

The Bible contains two chapters, which are nearly alike, word for word. They are the nineteenth chapter of II Kings and the thirty-seventh chapter of Isaiah.

GOVERNOR ASKS MOTORISTS TO BE CAREFUL

An earnest appeal to every citizen to be more careful in traffic was sounded in a proclamation issued yesterday by Governor James Rolph Jr. In order to prevent an increase in the tragic toll of accident deaths this year, he emphasized the great need for more respect for and obedience to traffic laws and courtesy to others, whether motorists or pedestrians.

"The state is fortunate," his statement declares, "in having such a well-defined organization as the California Committee on Public Safety, through which a great deal already has been accomplished in the inculcation of principles of safety. This committee is composed of representatives of more than 40 civic organizations and state government departments interested in traffic. Through educational and enforcement campaigns and technical studies the committee has made definite progress. The continued success of these efforts depends almost entirely upon the degree of public response which they shall receive."

"The annual list of traffic casualties is a challenge to our intelligence and to our sense of civic duty. We in California live in a land that is recognized the world over for the attractions it offers the motor tourist. Our great system of highways is second to none. Our motor vehicle registration is higher per capita than that of any other state. We have proportionately greater concern in the question of safety."

Due to construction of a dam in Santiago Canyon south of Irvine Park, it is necessary to detour via Rabbit Canyon, according to a report received by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

TRUCK BODY IS 400 YEARS OLD ON CHEVROLET

About 400 years ago at approximately the time Balboa first gazed on the Pacific ocean (1513), production was started on the most unusual Chevrolet truck body ever seen in the west. Chevrolet Motor company has not been in business 400 years but this particular body for one of its 1931 trucks began its career that long ago.

This unusual body is a Sitka spruce log, approximately eight feet in diameter and 13 feet long. It has been hollowed out until its walls are five inches thick. In this condition it weighs two and one-half tons, although it is mounted on a one and one-half ton truck. The wood still retains its sap and natural moisture and when dried it will weigh slightly more than one ton, according to Cyrus Gates, Northwest wood-

Chrysler Sets Twelve Records at Daytona

man who, with his son, Earl Gates, and a friend, Arthur Pearson, are touring the country in their Chevrolet log.

The unusual car is equipped with radio, gas stove, three bunks and other traveling equipment. The three men plan to drive their car 15,000 miles in a tour of the entire North American continent, visiting all large cities of the United States and touching interesting points in Canada and Mexico.

The giant log, which measured more than 10 feet in diameter at the base, is from a spruce tree that was slightly less than 300 feet in height. Few buildings of the country reach this height. Spruce was chosen because of its toughness, evenness of grain and relative lightness. Also it dries evenly and does not split or crack. It will be recalled that spruce was used extensively during the war in the manufacture of airplanes for these same reasons.

Gates is taking the log east for a very interesting reason. His home is in Pennsylvania and while visiting there some years ago he told his friends and relatives about the huge trees that grow in the West. His veracity was questioned rather severely. In fact, some folks back there did not hesitate to tell him that he was a plain, out-and-out, fully equipped prevaricator, F. O. B.

The cast has not yet been selected nor has a date for the production been set.

STARS SELECT GOODYEAR FOR LONG JOURNEYS

"It's Goodyear All-Weather when motor cars get together" can be further parodied by substituting "movie stars" for "motor cars." For movie stars in motor cars drive far and wide to find their weather. Mountains, deserts, beaches, valley—over highways and by-way the studio caravans are constantly on the move. Anita Page and Mary Lawler have transferred from motor car to dog sled in the mountains; Edwina Booth weathers the rain but, she says, it isn't like the African rain she experienced in the making of "Trader Horn;" the summer sand lured Lella Hyams and here she is stepping out in "Stepping Out;" her current M-G-M production; Robert Montgomery and Constance Bennett were caught starting an autumn canter at Yosemite between shots of "The Easiest Way."

Tires to stand up under all types of weather and all conditions of road are therefore considered very essential by those responsible for the safe and speedy transportation of stars, cast and "props" between studio and location.

In fact, as Mr. Hubert Bown of Citrus Tires company, Goodyear dealer, puts it, "These Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stars have come to rely on the Goodyear All-Weather the day long and the year 'round."

INCREASE SEEN IN DELIVERIES OF DODGE CARS

DETROIT, Mich., March 28.—A material and progressive increase in retail deliveries of Dodge passenger cars and trucks, and Plymouth cars by Dodge dealers is reported in a statement issued here today by Dodge Brothers Corporation.

This increase has been steady since the beginning of the year, having received impetus from the various automobile shows which have been in progress throughout the country. It was particularly noticeable during the last few weeks in February and the first week in March.

Retail deliveries of Dodge passenger cars, trucks and Plymouth cars during the week ending February 21st, showed an increase of 10.1 per cent over the previous week. Retail deliveries of the same units the week ending February 28th showed an increase of 9.2 per cent over the previous week. Similarly, deliveries for the week ending March 7th showed an increase of 8.7 per cent over the week before.

Shipments of Dodge passenger cars to United States dealers during the month of February were greater than in any month since May, 1930.

The statement calls attention to the steady increase in employment at the Dodge plant, resulting from the pronounced sales activity.

Speed Causes Car Costs To Increase, Said

Maintaining speed in the face of a head wind has a definite effect upon the cost of operating the car. An aviation expert, criticizing the wastage in modern motoring, has declared that it requires 50 per cent more power to operate a car at 60 miles an hour because of wind resistance. He pointed out this does not mean that 50 per cent more gasoline is consumed, but that consumption is materially increased. Consequently, it is economical to drive more slowly when facing a head wind.

MEXICAN GOVT. SEES NEED OF BETTER ROADS

Alive to the importance of modern highways as a means of attracting tourists, the Mexican government is engaged in a program of road construction which when completed will link the principal cities of the republic with each other and with the border cities of the United States.

While Mexican officials have announced that the highway on the east coast extending southward from Laredo, Texas, will be open in the near future, the Automobile Club of Southern California touring bureau points out that the road, when opened as announced, will be opened provisionally and that it will be a narrow dirt trail south of Ciudad Victoria to Pachuca. This section will be one over which only the adventurously-inclined motorist and skillful driver will desire to travel.

This is in contrast with the mental picture the average tourist forms of a new road—a wide, hard-surfaced highway with no grades steeper than a railroad. It probably will be about three years before this picture becomes a reality on the Laredo-Mexico City road. A relatively passable gravelled road may be expected in about a year and a half, it is believed, provided there is no slackening in the present construction program. The provisional opening is intended primarily by the Mexican highway commission to serve the purpose of moving necessary machinery through the gap that winds over a high mountain range and links inaccessible valleys through a country little known even to the Mexicans. The road will cross rivers over which much construction work must still be done.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT WINS national economy championship!

Free Wheeling President Eight sets new A.A.A. record for gasoline economy in famous Pacific Coast contest. Free Wheeling Studebaker Six wins second honors.

ANOTHER triumph for Free Wheeling... only two Free Wheeling Studebakers were entered in the third annual Gilmore-Wrightwood economy run—and they won first and second place... in competition with 40 other cars of 20 makes from the very cheapest to the most costly.

While this run proved officially only the economy of Free Wheeling, it demonstrated conclusively the simplicity of Free Wheeling as well, since all drivers were women.

Mrs. William Hurter, in a Free Wheeling President carrying five passengers, took first place with an American Automobile Association record of 46.71 ton miles per gallon of gasoline. Her car averaged better than 17½ speedometer miles per gallon over the 200 mile route which extended continuously upward from sea level to 6000 feet elevation.

Mrs. Jeanne Frost, in a Free Wheeling Studebaker Six, won second honors. Her car averaged over 23½ speedometer miles per gallon of gasoline but, because of its lighter weight, its ton mile average was 44.94. The Studebaker Six used less gasoline than any other sedan on the run. Neither car required the addition of oil or water.

Free Wheeling not only saves gasoline and oil but chassis wear and repairs. It makes momentum take the place of gasoline—it gives you 10 speedometer miles for 8 engine miles.

With Free Wheeling, you shift back and forth between high and second at any speed without touching the clutch. You get the greatest driving thrill and driving safety in motoring. Highway commissioners and safety directors, after driving Free Wheeling Studebakers, have pronounced Free Wheeling with positive gear control a new measure of safety to driver and public.

This same Free Wheeling has been adopted by Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln. Decide now, that you will choose no new car of the old order until you first go Free Wheeling in a Studebaker President, Commander or Dictator Eight, or brilliant new low-priced Studebaker Six. See a Studebaker dealer today and arrange for a trial drive.

All Studebaker cars now have Free Wheeling. The Studebaker Six ($795 to $995), The Dictator Eight ($1095 to $1250), The Commander Eight ($1585 to $1730), The President Eight ($1850 to $2600). Prices at the factory.

DIVORCE SEEKER GIVEN SURPRISE

A surprise was the lot of Beatrice Hayton when she took the stand in the court of Judge James L. Allen yesterday afternoon to testify during a hearing on an order to show cause in connection with the divorce action she filed against Edmund Hayton on March 17.

Attorney Dave Wettlin, representing the defendant, advised the court that the young woman had no grounds for any claim of support against her former husband, an annulment of the marriage had been granted by the court in January, 1927. The annulment action had been brought by the father of the husband, J. B. Hayton, of Orange, on grounds that the son married without parental consent, and the former Mrs. Hayton said she never had been advised of the action.

Judge Allen dismissed the matter from the calendar and advised the young woman her only recourse was to bring suit to set aside the judgment. She is the mother of two children, who it is reported are being supported by Hayton.

TASK OF GETTING ACQUAINTED

The Register desires to call attention to the whole list of candidates who have announced themselves for public office in the city of Santa Ana. A few days ago it was suggested there was a dearth of candidates and urged people to come out, particularly for the school board.

Well, they came. We feel, as we look over the large number of candidates, much like the starving man who had been begging food and then found himself run over by a free lunch wagon.

There are many good men now from whom selection can be made for every office in the city of Santa Ana. It behooves the citizens to learn the facts concerning candidates. The Register will be glad to furnish such information, as far as it is able to do so. The statements concerning the candidates themselves, of course, are never unfavorable. Many of these men, however, have lived in Santa Ana for many years. Their records are well known. At the same time the records are not always well known to the many newcomers of Santa Ana. Santa Ana is a city of over 30,000 population. Many of the people have lived here but a comparatively short period of time. Most of these candidates are known to the business people, or to the people whom we speak of as "folks about town" who comprise, as a matter of fact, but a small fraction of the total population. Upon the bulk of the population, which includes a large group of these newcomers, rests the problem of real government in this city. To many in this group the candidates are unknown and the candidates do not know the newcomers.

Issues should be made clear; candidates' attitudes should be known, for, strange to say, sometimes a man is well known, and yet his attitude on political questions is not known, and what he will do when elected to public office is unknown. But the candidates have done their part. The election day is approaching. The folks should look well to the question.

The Prince of Wales once said he would like to be a newspaper man. If he ever took the job, we'll wager the first thing the editor would do is put up a kick over his traveling expenses.

ARNOLD BENNETT

The death of Arnold Bennett marks the passing of one of the most painstaking and careful writers. Mr. Bennett had published almost thirty books and a dozen plays. His most recent book, "Imperial Palace," was practically eight hundred pages long. The pictures of hotel business which it contained were so detailed and complete and therefore lengthy as to excite adverse criticism. But in a period of sketchiness Arnold Bennett was unique for his thoroughness. The value of his method stands forth today for with his passing one recalls this character, or that, encountered in one or another of his books, read years ago. They were firmly impressed on the mind. There was the old couple in "Riceyman Steps," who starved themselves to death in their penuriousness, and the four old women, for examples.

Arnold Bennett was born in North Staffordshire, in 1867. He started on a career in law but abandoned it to become assistant editor of "Woman," succeeding to the editorship of that publication in 1896. In 1900 he resigned to devote himself exclusively to writing.

Among his writings are "Anna of the Five Towns," "The Old Wives' Tale," "Riceyman Steps," "Lord Rainsford," "Elsie and Child," "Old Women," "The Grand Babylon Hotel."

Many folks who don't believe in signs have considerable respect for the dollar sign.

TWIN PROTECTION

A London insurance broker is now insuring people against having twins. For five pounds premium, paid six months prior to the expected birth, a policy is issuable paying one hundred pounds, in the event twins are born. The broker maintains that there is a hundred to five chance that your next child won't be a twin.

That extra money would come in handy in case of twins, for the extra clothes and larger baby buggy.

THE ECONOMIC ALLIANCE BETWEEN GERMANY AND AUSTRIA

Germany and Austria have entered into an economic alliance which provides for free trade between the two countries. This is a very sane arrangement destined to be of benefit to both nations. It is somewhat like the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada suggested by President Taft in his administration, and which was found to be unacceptable to public opinion both here and in Canada.

As a result of this arrangement, the surrounding countries are asking whether this arrangement is not in violation of the treaty of Versailles which forbids any political or annexation move between the countries concerned. The reading of the clause in the Versailles treaty is not clear as to this matter. It is apparent that some of the European nations are going to make an appeal to the Council of the League of Nations to prevent the agreement.

Matters like these, and that of the Reparations question, illustrate how difficult it is to enforce the provisions of a treaty as the years pass by. It is a matter of doubt as to whether the reparations will ever be collected from Germany. The matter of the Polish corridor, which divides East Prussia from the rest of Germany, is a sore point. The prohibition against a political union between Germany and Austria is now being overcome somewhat by this new agreement between the countries concerned. Never was a law or a treaty framed, as Lord Brougham once said, through which an astute lawyer or statesman could not drive a coach and six. Political alliances seem to have gone out since the World war. In their place now come these economic alliances. And the latter seem to be as big with difficulty as the former.

Consider the Wildflowers

Oakland Tribune

The fields which bloom with wildflowers right now are also peopled with men, women and children. It is great fun to go out where the blossoms glow and nod, rare experience for the eyes and soul, and also, a certain test in attitudes and consideration.

For there are ways and ways to pick the wildflowers. Not every person who plucks the blossoms which yearly are becoming more scarce is a vandal despoiling the beauties of California. The one who uses discretion, gathers but enough to brighten his home, and all the while enjoys the pageantry of the rest, incurs no penalties or blame. But what is to be said of those who lead blossoms into automobiles, use them to decorate radiators and running boards, pull them up by the roots, carry them for distances so long that they wilt and die and must be discarded? They are the ones who are hastening the time when our fields will be barren of flowers, the ones who are robbing the present and future of that which, perhaps, may never be replaced.

Though they do not figure in the statistics which are put out to denote our California wealth, the wildflowers are one of the state's greatest assets. Inevitably the plow moves to decrease the area of their natural growth. Elsewhere, destruction comes in with the feverish enjoyment many urban persons take in grabbing all that is colorful and blooming in the open country. They will get them all unless they can be taught or restrained, and the pity is their excuse is a "love of beauty."

A real love of beauty will seek to perpetuate California as the fair land of flowers and consider the values of blossoms under the skies more important than those which are doomed to short life in the vases or on the windshields.

Motive Vs. Appearances

Christian Science Monitor

Excelsior, leading conservative daily of Mexico City, asks a provocative question about President Hoover's use of a warship for his trip to the Virgin Islands and Porto Rico. It is a question easily answered. Yet it well illustrates how good intentions may be misunderstood. Perhaps, too, it points the way to abandonment of an age-long diplomatic procedure—the proffer of peace messages in mailed flight.

"Why does the President of the United States have a preference for warships in visiting the other countries of America?" Excelsior asks. "Is it because they are faster, safer or more comfortable, or because it makes his voyage more significant?" It is true the President utilized a war vessel for his pre-inaugural trip to South America. There are reasons, quite apart from a desire to impress neighboring American nations with the power of the United States. Naval vessels must be kept up and paid for whether they are used or not. The present voyage of the President is made in the interests of economy to coincide with a necessary "shake-down" cruise of the U. S. S. Arizona. Moreover, the use of war vessels for diplomatic missions has become an accepted tradition.

But perhaps just here Excelsior has touched a chord of promise. In a world endeavoring to supplant force with law and war with peace, even warlike appearances are becoming out of place. Perhaps one of the next steps in demilitarizing diplomacy will be to abandon the use of warships for diplomatic missions. A far more important step is the demilitarization of opinion so that nations will not misinterpret their neighbor's acts, but will expect those neighbors to be prompted by the same good motives as actuate themselves.

SATURDAY, MARCH 28

A Business Risk

(Read Luke 19:11-26. Text, Luke 19:26.)

Unto every one of which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

The men who made such large returns on the money entrusted to them must have taken great risks. The fault of the third man was that he was prudent, cautious, afraid to take risks. The teaching of the parable is that we must use or we will lose. But to use is to take chances of losing. To use our religion in the practical affairs of life is to risk it. Our treasure of faith is put to hazard when we take it out into the markets of life. There are many who think it is in danger from the science of our day. What then? Shall we keep our religion separate and apart from business? Shall we shield our faith from contacts with the teachings of science? Those who counsel these things endorse the conduct of the man who laid his pound away in a napkin. Faith must face every challenge.

PRAYER: Lord of the seas, grant unto us courage to launch out into the deep. Let not any fear possess our souls, who have put our trust in thee. Amen.

A SPRING WARNING

The fly is but a tiny mite
But there is poison in his bite.
He plants his germs
In epidemics
To scatter dread diseases.
He's always eager to intrude
His beak amid your daily food,
Infesting meat
That you may eat,
And bread and milk and cheeses.

By night the wee mosquito comes
And when you hear him as he hums
And shrills and moans,
In whining tones
His vicious battle aria,
Some day you'll awaken with a pain
That throbs and throbs through every vein,
And the M. D.
Your tongue will see
And say you have malaria.

These creatures do not roar and growl
As through your habitat they prowl,
Nor burrow in
Your tender skin
As does the tiny weevil.
But you should swat them just the same
Because they play a wicked game.
The rattlesnake
Amid the brake
Is not so base and evil.

Love Charms for Farmers

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

The men of San Antonio Atlahuaca, Mexico, have at last rebelled against a diet of love charms. The diet has long been fed to them secretly by their wives, for the purpose of renewing their waning affections. But the charms didn't work. It is said that they bred despair, instead of affection; and the longer the treatment, the deeper the despair.

At last, the victims could stand it no longer. Armed with clubs, they descended on the "witch"—the aged Indian woman who concocted the charms—and began to beat her. They stopped only when she promised to leave the haunts of men, and go back to the hills and stay there.

The politicians in our own country have long been feeding love charms to the farmers, for the purpose of renewing their waning affections. These love charms have been concocted from the dried roots of defunct economic theories.

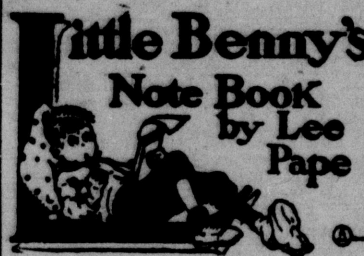

For a long time, the politicians pretended that there was witchery in any kind of protective tariff. It would lift the standard of living for everybody. Gradually the farmers began to suspect that the tariff exhausted its witchery in lifting the prices of most of the things which farmers have to buy. Then the love potions began to breed despair instead of affection.

Hastily, the politicians brewed some more old roots into the charmed pot. Then they added a few hundred millions of Government money.

Double, double, toil and trouble;
Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

Out came a magic means of keeping up prices of farm products. Whereupon prices began to fall, and kept on falling. The men of San Antonio Atlahuaca ceased beating the old witch only when she promised to go back to the hill and stay there.

ON THE SIDELINES

Which may or may not be in accord with the views of The Register

By Horace McPhee

IT'S SIMPLY ISN'T DONE.—The Jefferson (Minn.) Bee sizes up the situation with considerable acumen and downright common sense when it says:

"The editor who advertises at his newspaper masthead that he prints 'all the news, all the time,' is a liar, and the truth is not in him. If he did he would be shot before sundown. The old proverb, 'Least said, soonest mended,' is applicable to many articles of news which drift into the newspaper office. However, the proverb is just as applicable to the breakfast table conversation as it is to the newspaper."

NO FIGHT OF OURS.—With considerable interest one notes the fact that our friends, the Democrats, have started to fight among themselves—a fight in which no quarter will be shown and which will end only when the polls close at the general election of 1932.

Personally our attitude in the matter is that of the woman who, hearing a loud racket in the neighborhood, saw that her husband and a bear were furiously fighting. "Well," she said, "that's the first fight I ever saw where I didn't care which one licked."

MR. KERSEY'S REPORT.—To give an award to every student who meets the minimum requirements of "mental, social and physical efficiency" in the high schools of California, instead of selecting for distinction those particularly gifted in the athletic field, is the ideal of Virling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction of California. In a report to Governor Rolph, Mr. Kersey advocates a radical and startling change in the athletic system of the state. He would abolish national, state and sectional championships in football and other sports for California high schools.

Mr. Kersey evidently believes that the development of the individual is of primary importance in the educational scheme. He is advocating the putting into athletics of an educational idea long used in the classroom and in school government.

To see an American boy or girl develop—to see him encouraged in acquiring athletic skill, commensurate with his ability, knowing that whatever his ability may be he will be judged on that alone—to see him acquire ideals of fair play, good sportsmanship and health—is not this more important than the hand-playing, tennis which accompanies competitive athletics?

Mr. Kersey believes in athletics for all—not a favored few who happen to possess more brawn than the others. He believes in rewarding those who work according to their capacity, and not discouraging them by a competitive system which recognizes only the "fittest" of the school.

England has long believed in this type of athletics. On their athletic fields you will find men playing for the love of the sport rather than with a fierce determination to win, in order to be sectional champions of this or that.

In our opinion Mr. Kersey is a far-sighted individual who has advocated a program that means progress for the state through the high school students who are to become citizens. He is working toward that old sociological ideal—"the greatest good for the greatest number"—and we hope he is successful.
